detroit diesel diagnostic link Category:Tools for windows Category:Trucks of the United States Category:Vehicle modifications Category:Vehicle technologyQ: Why is the content of the page accessible only by the guest user, when the requested path leads to an Http 401 status? I have a lot of files (a total of 12K for example) under a folder, that I am access to using the following path in This works fine, but I need to do it without the user having to login, just providing the name of the file. This is where I'm getting the problem, because the user is considered anonymous and when requesting the page, I get a response with a 401 Unauthorized. What is the reason for this behavior, is there any way to make it work? Note: I know the 403 Forbidden will also generate a 401 Unauthorized response, but in my case it will be just a mess of permissions and will affect the server performance in a very bad way, as the current implementation is used on a high traffic server. Thank you very much for the help A: If you wish to not have to authenticate, you need to be using HTTP Basic Authentication. }); data.close(); } } else { this.downloadModal.show(); } }, openDownloadModal: function() { if (this.downloadModal === undefined) { this.downloadModal = ui.createModal({ target: this.$ 2d92ce491b
