The problem is simple when you understand the date patterns, the reason for it, how it is generated and how to display it. When I look on my calendar, I often see that it displays three dates for each day. You can get the calendar on the format which is convenient for you - from the Chinese New Year, the celebration of birthdays, anniversaries and other festivities. If you have forgotten to check your calendar on the specified date, you can adjust the settings and find the date. It is necessary to follow the instructions as the shortcut keys are different. How to find the date in the Chinese calendar? I. Two dates for each day In this case you can change the settings to: - use a specific calendar - to repeat events. These settings are located on the Settings page in the settings menu and can be displayed in both languages. At the start of every month you may find the possibility of changing the date from the Chinese calendar to the Gregorian. How to display Chinese dates on your computer in various date format styles? II. All in one The internal settings allow to display the selected calendar both ways - without a separation of dates and on the same window with the possibility to make a choice. That is how the format changes both at the beginning of the month and in the calendar. If you are not familiar with the settings, you can access them through the Settings page, where you can choose the different languages (Chinese, English, Russian). First, we'll look at the settings themselves, then you can find the information about specific shortcuts. What's in the settings? The settings page is presented in three main formats - by default, the format is created with the Chinese calendar, but you can change it to English. The selection of the unit of time for the Japanese calendar is based on three main factors - so far has been recorded in the Japanese standard months is. After the creation of the format, you can change it to the Gregorian calendar. After clicking on the power menu to see the new window, you can change it to the desired format. Third - you can adjust the settings for events and remind yourself about the possibility of their repetition. How do I display all the details of the event in Chinese? III. Using the Chinese character (modern) To view the existing format in the Chinese version of the calendar, you need to use the settings shown below: To enter the 09e8f5149f
