Grab images, text and other objects from any Windows application, web browser or other programs and copy them to the clipboard using this handy application. From the drop-down list, you can select which applications and web browsers you want to be able to be used for this purpose. The integrated context menu supports extensive options, which provide the opportunity to perform various clipboard functions, e.g. insert text, copy and paste, print and export images or attachments. Clipboard Helper is a GUI tool and can therefore be used directly from the System Tray. It allows you to paste images from Windows Explorer, Office and MS-Word, as well as Bitmap images, drawings or PDFs. Image preview and edit features are available for all supported formats (JPG, GIF, PNG, BMP and PDF). Key Features: - Context menu and accelerator key enable you to perform several actions on the selected item - Images can be copied and pasted into Windows Explorer and other applications - Open images from web browsers - Export images to PDF, PNG and JPEG - Save images from Windows Explorer as a PNG - Save Bitmap image from Windows Explorer as a JPEG - Drag and drop image from Windows Explorer or any other application into Clipboard Helper Fantastic as usual, thank you very much. A: This is a great app. Have been using it as a daily command line for quite some time now. Your post and the other answers was also very helpful. Clipboard Helper is the first decent app that does a similar job. The only difference is the clipboard view and the fact that it requires Java. Composite panels are commonly used for many decorative or structural purposes. Typically, a laminate panel includes a decorative layer of wood or wood laminate glued on a rough surface of a composite substrate, or backing material, of various types. The front faces of the composite panels are often finished or provided with a protective, decorative or functional coating. The protective, decorative or functional coatings typically used are impregnated on the backing material prior to forming the laminate panel. Various techniques are employed to impregnate the coating or paint onto the backing material. One example is the use of an electro-coagulation technique in which electrical current is passed between a drum and an anode to produce a thin layer of metal or other conductive particles. The drum is rotated to cause the particles to be deposited on the
